A: I don't use it, but this appears to be the activity tracker and app for the Bosch Fit watches. From the website: it is the companion app for your fitness tracker This appears to be the generic version of the app for both the below. Q: glTexImage2D(GL_TEXTURE_2D, 0, GL_RGBA, outputWidth, outputHeight, 0, GL_RGBA, GL_UNSIGNED_BYTE, outputData); My image was finally saved at the url to network disk. The quality is very bad, the speed is quick. How to use glTexImage2D? A: I've never used glTexImage2D, but I guess it is the equivalent of glTexImage2D(). As mentioned by the docs (quoting the 2nd parameter): srcName is the name of a texture object whose contents are to be written to the texture. So, assuming your texture is "name_of_texture.tga", you should call glTexImage2D() with srcName as the name of your texture, a target of GL_TEXTURE_2D, a format of GL_RGBA and an internal format of GL_RGBA and then, with target being GL_TEXTURE_2D, format being GL_RGBA, and data being the image data that you got from your remote image server. EDIT I think my initial assumption was wrong. According to this answer, GL_TEXTURE_1D and GL_TEXTURE_2D are equivalent and that for GL_TEXTURE_3D, it's equivalent to GL_TEXTURE_1D but the last parameter should be GL_TEXTURE_WRAP_S (or GL_TEXTURE_WRAP_T). Inhaled corticosteroids (ICS) reduce the risk of new asthma attacks, but up to half of patients with moderate to severe asthma receiving ICS therapy do not respond. The leukotriene receptor antagonist, montelukast, is currently the only pharmacotherapy approved to reduce the risk of new asthma attacks. Unfortunately, oral montelukast is poorly absorbed, and systemic exposures are low. Consequently, mont e79caf774b
