The latest version of ScreenShoot X Portable is: V7.0.1516.1303.Q: Cannot create index on column of type UNSIGNED BIGINT in mySQL I am creating indexes on columns of type UNSIGNED BIGINT. CREATE INDEX ix_blog_template ON blog (blog_template_id (UNSIGNED BIGINT NOT NULL)); ERROR: Can't write to FLOAT columns in ADD/DROP INDEX (DOCUMENT DATA TYPE) How can I create an index on a column of type UNSIGNED BIGINT? A: It seems the table data type FLOAT is not supported by MySQL for datatypes UNSIGNED BIGINT (see documentation for details). UPDATE This issue is fixed (or at least for 5.6.5 and later) as of 2014, the table FLOAT is supported for UNSIGNED BIGINT as well. A: I know that this is old, but I encountered this issue myself today and thought I'd add an answer. The issue seems to be with the mySQL server that I'm using on Heroku. This server only supports the old legacy column data types FLOAT and INTEGER. So if you have an index with a UNSIGNED BIGINT column, mySQL will not let you create an index at all, it will give you a warning, but will not let you. To get around this, you could change the column type to signed, but this means that you have to manually check the values of all the data and change the data to make sure it is positive. Solution: Set the column type to signed. This will get you the ability to use indexes on the column. $20

A: Uhm. The virus that you're getting is a .JAR file. If you don't know anything about computers, you might not understand what that means. It's a virus that is maliciously designed to infect the target system by tricking the user into downloading it. How it works is it asks the user for an installer for a program, and when the user downloads the installer, the virus is installed instead. It then proceeds to send lots of spam in the form of a fake update to the user's e-mail address. I found a manual that you might find helpful to know what's going on in this case. As I suspected, it's an old and unofficial resource, so I can't give you a directly-linked copy. However, here is the original tutorial: In February, a large trampoline landed out of view of a Pennsylvania state trooper who was on his way to drive a semi-trailer truck, hitting the trooper in the back and dragging him 600 feet before coming to rest. This was in an area where the truck was parked. Sadly the trooper was not wearing a seat belt and the impact was fatal. In April, a 16-year-old boy was playing on a trampoline belonging to his 16-year-old sister when it fell on top of him. Fortunately, the boy was wearing a helmet and was wearing a properly adjusted pad.

He was taken to a local hospital where he died. Sadly, these two examples occurred in the same year. Unfortunately, trampoline accidents can occur to children and adults of any age. Children and Adults Jump on Trampolines - Do You Protect Them? The reality is that there are many trampoline accidents each year. In fact, an estimated three children die every day in the United States while on a trampoline. Children seem to have a greater chance of being injured by trampolines, it is in the USA that trampolines seem to be most commonly used. Although the laws vary from state to state, it is illegal to operate a trampoline unless it is properly certified as being safe for children's use. It is important to note that laws regarding child safety vary from state to state, and it is also important to note that
