The response received by the client will have some JSON data which will be parsed by the server. The server is working on Windows 7 without any issues. However, when I moved it to Windows 8.1, the server is listening on the socket but the connection is closed by itself. All other ports are working fine. The server code looks like: public class Handler : IDisposable { const int _socket_flag = 1; static volatile bool _isDisposed = false; const int _listen_socket = 12345; private const string _address = "127.0.0.1"; public Socket ServerSocket { get; set; } public UdpListener Listener { get; set; } private string _program_name;
